NEW WAY TO LOOK AT THE PROBLEM

Three tough truths about climate

What I want everyone at COP30 to know.

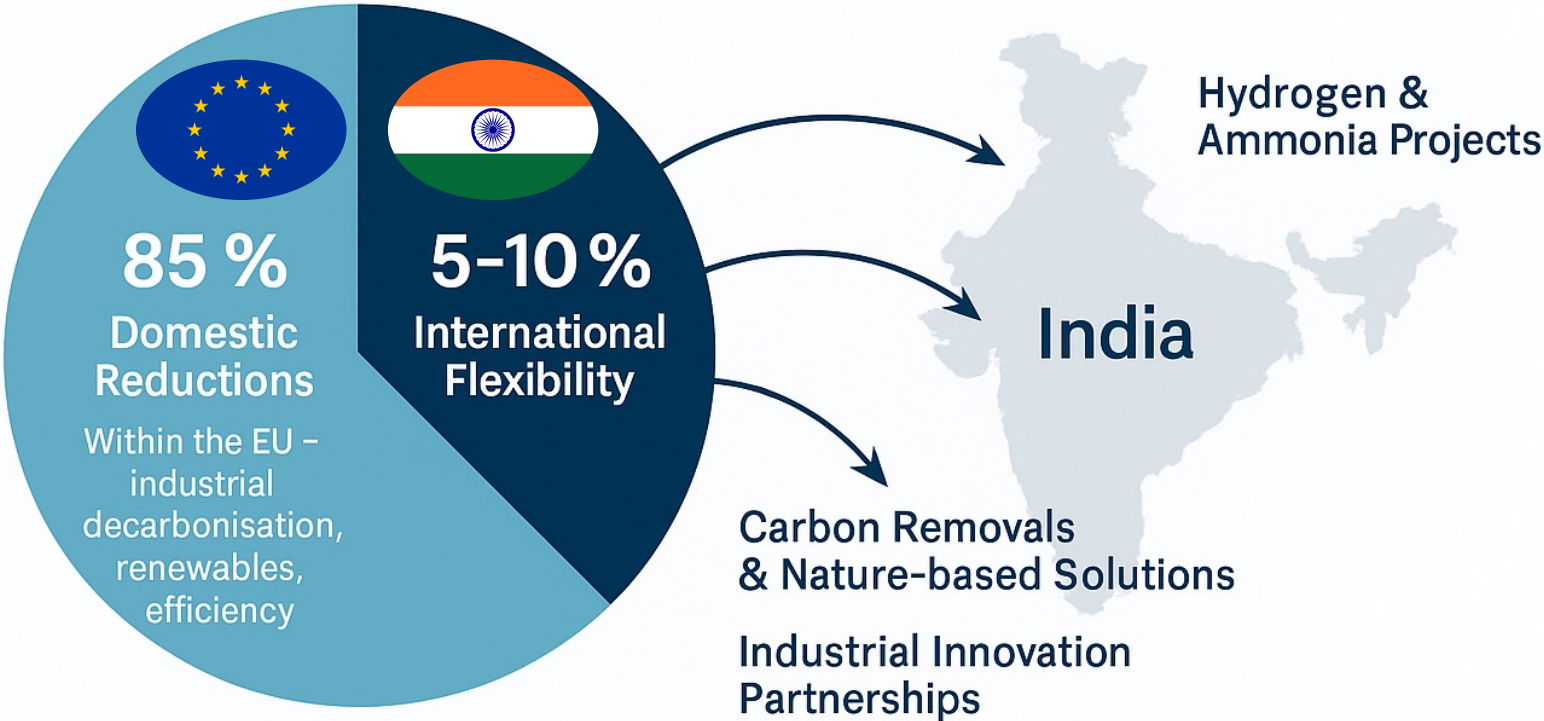

By Bill Gates

- Climate change is serious, but we've made great progress. We need to keep backing the breakthroughs that will help the world reach zero emissions.
- But we can't cut funding for health and development—programs that help people stay resilient in the face of climate change—to do it.
- It's time to put human welfare at the center of our climate strategies, which includes reducing the Green Premium to zero and improving agriculture and health in poor countries.

Letter to President of the European Commission

To: H.E. Ursula von der Leyen, President of the European Commission

Cc: Dan Jørgensen, European Commissioner for Energy; Wopke Hoekstra, European Commissioner for Climate, Net Zero and Clean Growth

Brussels, 06 November 2025

Subject: Strengthening the European Hydrogen Bank through a delegated cooperation with H2Global and continuing annual auctions

Dear President von der Leyen,

We urge the European Commission to continue its support for the European Hydrogen Bank by providing future annual auctions and to complete H2Global's pillar assessment to launch a pilot import auction under the international leg of the EHB. This offers simplification, saves taxpayers money and would be immediately operational, instead of taking years to set up while duplicating efforts. In turn, this ensures Europe's leadership in the hydrogen sector and sends a strong signal to the European industry while building trust and providing tangible results in the near future.

We are convinced that this joint initiative would embody the spirit of your current agenda: a Europe that acts faster, smarter, and with greater unity to remain a global leader in clean technology.

Yours sincerely,
